

Balkans: Re-loaded

ICWiP2010 International Culture Week in Pécs 24 July - 1 August 2010

ICWiP2010 takes place in one of the European Capitals of Culture 2010, in Pécs, Hungary.

The city and its regions provide a wonderful framework for such an intercultural event.

The International Culture Week in Pécs is one of the most popular thematic youth festivals of Central Europe and the Alps-Adriatic Region combining a conference (summer university) and different cultural and sport activities.

Under the motto "Balkans: Re-loaded" ICWiP2010 will discuss what a "Balkans identity" is, or might mean to young people from region and beyond. It is no doubt that the Balkans represent a unique and at the same time very multicultural area on the European continent.

How do young people view their future and reflect their national identities in relation to a possible "Balkans identity"? How does the world look at countries of the region, and what types of co-operation can be developed in the 21st century?

Debate on the Balkans with intercultural learning methods

Gather personal experience in an intercultural environment!

ICWiP offers you to take part in a unique festival, which includes a high-level scientific conference (you can present your thoughts and research, too!) and loads of different cultural activities in the form of music, dance, theatre and movies.

In addition, you will be taken to numerous settlements in the countryside.

Enjoy the "ICWiP Spirit" and share it with others!

Do not miss the festival of your life!
